DETAILS OF THE INNOVATIVE TEACHING METHODS USED BY THE FACULTY

Academic Year	2022-2023
Subject Name and Subject code	Automata theory and computability-18CS54
Faculty Name	Keerthi P
Semester	Vsem (A& B)
Name of the Innovative Teaching Methods used	Project based Learning and active learning
Short Description Innovative Teaching Activity	Automata Theory and computability (ATC) deals with the study of abstract models of machines that perform computations on an input by moving through a series of states or configurations. A series of active learning and innovative teaching helped students to adopt and think about the subject in a realistic way. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Physical model</li> <li>• Animation</li> <li>• Coding</li> </ul>

Contents of the Event	Computer Science department has organized a Project Expo on Outcome Based Education-Innovation Teaching and Learning for the subject Automata theory and computability-18CS54 - focuses on problem based learning and active learning on real-time collaboration to the students of V semester B. E students in order to learn and understand the concepts of Theory of computability.
Impact Analysis after using this Innovative Teaching Methods used.	Students understood the concept in detail and the purpose of the subject in their curriculum and implementation of real applications based on the subject
Feedback from the students	Excellent Very innovative method helped us to learn a lot Helped us to understand the concepts in reality Made us to learn practically
Relevance to PO and PSO	PO3,PSO3
Any comments or Suggestions from the Programme Coordinator	Please make the contents available in website
